

Endless Possibilities

Zak mentions his career goals and the opportunities he's had here at IUPUI

Date: October 01, 2008

Duration: 1:59

Transcript

[Z. Koehler] My name's Zak Koehler. I'm a senior at IUPUI majoring in biology. The reason I chose IUPUI was I liked the large city atmosphere. I also liked the number of opportunities that IUPUI had to offer. They offered a lot of opportunities that a lot of other schools don't give you, but you also got the feel of the big city atmosphere.

I'm actually a pre-med biology major and I would like to continue my education going on to med school. From there, I'm not completely sure. From what I've been exposed to, I like the fields of cardiology emergency medicine, but I'm always open to new opportunities. Being the first one to go to college in the family, I mean, it was a big step there. I'm definitely proud. They support me all the way.

I'm actually a recreation volunteer so I have the opportunity to play ping pong with the residents that are there. I play basketball, go swimming, play catch - get to be a kid again. The reason I chose the activities is I like to give back to the community. Also from my experiences, it's been a lot of fun. I enjoy doing it. And I'll continue doing it for as long as I can.

IUPUI has actually been almost everything I've expected. They've actually provided me with a lot more than I originally expected when I came here. The best part is probably the endless opportunities, and everyone here that I've encountered wants you to do well. The numerous opportunities they have for you to get help whether it's the MAC Center, the Writing Center or teachers always being available, it's a campus that want you to exceed.