LIBRARY DISPLAY FEATURES HORACE WELLS IN "PAST PAGES OF DENTISTRY"

The library's current display, in its history of dentistry series, features an attractive arrangement of books, pictures and other materials depicting the life and work of Horace Wells, dentist, who is credited with the discovery in 1844 of the use of anesthesia in surgery. The library has available the several books used in the display and recommends them as compelling and gripping accounts of this medical pioneer's relentless battle against the age-old spectre of human suffering.

DENTAL DIVISION LAUNCHES NEW PROGRAM AND STUDY IN INDIANA SCHOOLS

Several school systems in the state will participate in a dental referral program this year. Under the program, each child will take home a card requesting that he be taken to the family dentist for examination and treatment. After completion of work, the card, signed by the dentist, is returned to school. The schools' teachers and nurses work together to implement and follow-up the program, which is intended to eventually include all Indiana school children.

Doctors Gish and Muhler have begun a self-application topical fluoride study in the Frankfort schools. The purpose of the study, which is to be continued for two years or longer, is to measure the anticariogenic benefit afforded by several fluoride compounds incorporated into a compatible paste when self-administered by children using a toothbrush. Self-application is a new concept in preventive dental care.

Mrs. Katherine Bruce and Miss Donna Humphreys, new dental assistants in the Department of Pedodontics;

Mrs. Ann Johnstone, who is dividing her time between the Oral Diagnosis Department and the Student Office;

NEW RULES FOR LOST AND FOUND

New procedures have been set up to improve the management of lost and found articles at the Dental School. Items found which would be classed as dental instruments or equipment are to be turned in at the Dental Instrument Office, Room B-15. Any other items--books, clothing, keys, etc., should be turned in at the Student Office, Room 104. Each item will be tagged with the name of the finder and the date, and if not claimed by the owner within 60 days will become the property of the finder or disposed of.

MRS. REDFORD EXPRESSES APPRECIATION LAUDS ASSISTANTS

Mrs. Mildred Redford, who has recently come to IUSD after 12 years in Surgical Research at the Medical Center to supervise the work in Dental Research on the 5th floor, expresses appreciation for her warm welcome and the cooperation of her co-workers:

"Thank you all for being so very nice to me and making me feel so welcome in the Dental School. We have a lot of good studies going in all fields. I have three very competent assistants, without whom the work would be impossible.

Charles Bowles has been in Dental Research for five years. Lorenzo Steward has been on campus five years. Robert Booker, a senior in high school, top student and ace basketball player, has worked for two summers and is presently working weekends and holidays."

We are very fortunate to have Mrs. Redford, as many improvements in the workings of the 5th floor "Animal Room" are apparent and give witness to her competence.
