Indiana University Public Policy Institute

The IU Public Policy Institute, established in 1993 within the Indiana University School of Public and Environmental Affairs (SPEA), delivers unbiased research and data-driven, objective, expert analysis to help public, private, and nonprofit sectors make important decisions that directly impact quality of life in Indiana and throughout the nation. Using the knowledge and expertise of a multi-disciplinary staff and faculty, PPI provides data and analysis that addresses a wide range of issues. PPI helps leaders, citizens, businesses, and organizations solve problems, seize opportunities, and create positive change. PPI also supports the Indiana Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations (IACIR).

Indiana University School of Public and Environmental Affairs

SPEA was created in 1972 to address complex issues in public policy, public finance, and environmental science. SPEA's faculty is diverse and committed to high quality research. Research is funded from multiple sources, such as the World Bank, the Environmental Protection Agency, the National Institutes of Health, the National Science Foundation, and the National Endowment for the Arts. SPEA faculty members frequently work in more than one research area, and often collaborate across disciplines. The School hosts four major journals under the editorial direction of faculty, including the Journal of Policy Analysis and Management, Public Administration Review, Public Budgeting & Finance, and Small Business Economics.

Acknowledgments

Producing Fiscal Benchmarking for Indiana's Local Governments: Comprehensive Report for 2011-2012 Counties, Townships, and Cities and Towns required a joint effort involving many people throughout Indiana. In this project, we have called upon the time and resources of several individuals, agencies and institutions and they have generously responded. We are deeply grateful to all who made valuable contributions to the report.

We especially appreciate the wise counsel and generous financial support provided by John Graham, Dean, IU-SPEA, and John L. Krauss, (former) Director, IU Public Policy Institute. We are thankful also for the support from Mark Lawrance in his brief tenure as the new Director of the IU Public Policy Institute, and to Matt Nagle, former staff member, for his efforts at the start of the project. In addition, we acknowledge several other individuals who gave generously of their time and professional expertise, including:

Notes:

1. Some cities and towns are able to establish sanitary and water districts that collect property taxes. In some cases, these districts have boundaries that are bigger or smaller than the territory of the city or town. In these cases, the assessed value of the district is reported here.
2. The summary statistics in this table are calculated based on the assessed values of the city or town. The assessed values associated with any sanitary and water districts are not included in the summary statistics
3. Indianapolis is reported as six special districts. The geographies of these districts are not coterminous. As such, the assessed value for each special district is reported separately and is not included in the summary statistics.
4. Due to rounding, change may be slightly more or less than the difference between the data displayed for 2011 and 2012.

Notes:

1. Some cities and towns are able to establish sanitary and water districts that collect property taxes. In some cases, these districts have boundaries that are bigger or smaller than the territory of the city or town. In these cases, the homestead deductions for the district are reported here.
2. The summary statistics in this table are calculated based on the homestead deductions of the city or town. The homestead deductions associated with the sanitary and water districts are not included in the summary statistics.
3. Indianapolis is reported as six special districts. The geographies of these districts are not coterminous. As such, the homestead deductions for each special district is reported separately and is not included in the summary statistics.
4. Due to rounding, change may be slightly more or less than the difference between the data displayed for 2011 and 2012.

Notes:

1. Some cities and towns are able to establish sanitary and water districts that collect property taxes. In some cases, these districts have boundaries that are bigger or smaller than the territory of the city or town. In these cases, the supplemental homestead deductions for the district are reported here.
2. The summary statistics in this table are calculated based on the supplemental homestead deductions of the city or town. The supplemental homestead deductions associated with the sanitary and water districts are not included in the summary statistics.
3. Indianapolis is reported as six special districts. The geographies of these districts are not coterminous. As such, the supplemental homestead deductions for each special district is reported separately and is not included in the summary statistics.
4. Due to rounding, change may be slightly more or less than the difference between the data displayed for 2011 and 2012.

Notse:

1. Some cities and towns are able to establish sanitary and water districts that collect property taxes. In some cases, these districts have boundaries that are bigger or smaller than the territory of the city or town. In these cases, the non-homestead deductions for the district are reported here.
2. The summary statistics in this table are calculated based on the non-homestead deductions of the city or town. The non-homestead deductions associated with the sanitary and water districts are not included in the summary statistics.
3. Indianapolis is reported as six special districts. The geographies of these districts are not coterminous. As such, the non-homestead deductions for each special district is reported separately and is not included in the summary statistics.
4. Due to rounding, change may be slightly more or less than the difference between the data displayed for 2011 and 2012.

Notes:

1. Some cities and towns are able to establish sanitary and water districts that collect property taxes. In some cases, these districts have boundaries that are bigger or smaller than the territory of the city or town. In these cases, the assessed value of the district is reported here.
2. The summary statistics in this table are calculated based on the assessed values of the city or town. The assessed values associated with any sanitary and water districts are not included in the summary statistics.
3. Indianapolis is reported as six special districts. The geographies of these districts are not coterminous. As such, the assessed value for each special district is reported separately and is not included in the summary statistics.
4. Due to rounding, change may be slightly more or less than the difference between the data displayed for 2011 and 2012.

Notes:

1. Except for Indianapolis and Winfield, the tax rates reported here reflect the sum of all rates for each unit, including rates identified as special districts.
2. Indianapolis is treated as six special districts. The geographies of these districts are not coterminous. As such, the rates for Indianapolis are reported separately and are not included in the summary statistics.
3. The Winfield Waterworks serves only part of the town. As such, the tax rate for the Waterworks is reported separately, and is not included in the summary statistics.

Notes:

1. The data reported here reflect the sum of LOIT revenue used to replace property taxes for homesteads for each unit, including revenues for related special districts.
2. Due to rounding, change may be slightly more or less than the difference between the data displayed for 2011 and 2012.

Notes:

1. The data reported here reflect the sum of LOIT revenue used to replace property taxes for non-homestead residential property for each unit, including revenues for related special districts.
2. Due to rounding, change may be slightly more or less than the difference between the data displayed for 2011 and 2012.

Notes:

1. The data reported here reflect the sum of LOIT revenue used to replace property taxes for other property for each unit, including revenues for related special districts.

2. Due to rounding, change may be slightly more or less than the difference between the data displayed for 2011 and 2012.

Notes:

1. The data reported here reflect the sums of levies and LOIT revenues used to replace homestead property taxes for each unit, including related special districts.
2. Due to rounding, change may be slightly more or less than the difference between the data displayed for 2011 and 2012.
3. NA = Not Applicable.

Notes:

1. Tax-supported debt-related obligations are not available for 2011.
2. Units reported as "in process" are denoted with an "***". Data for these units may have been incomplete at the time of the report containing the 2011 source data.
3. Units that did not affirm their debt data by March 2013 are denoted with an "***" (2012 data only).
4. NR = Not Reported.
5. DeMotte, Elkhart, Fort Wayne, Highland, Hobart, South Bend, Speedway and Winchester reported using federal tax credits for their 2012 tax-supported debt. These credits typically are used to reduce debt payments. The debt obligations reported here do not reflect these credits.

Notes:

1. Tax-supported debt-related obligations is not available for 2011.
2. Units that did not affirm their debt data by March 2013 are denoted with an "***" (2012 data only).
3. NR = Not Reported.
4. DeMotte, Elkhart, Fort Wayne, Highland, Hobart, South Bend, Speedway and Winchester reported using federal tax credits for their 2012 tax-supported debt. These credits typically are used to reduce debt payments. The debt obligations reported here do not reflect these credits.

Notes:

1. Tax-supported debt-related obligations is not available for 2011.
2. Units that did not affirm their debt data by March 2013 are denoted with an "****" (2012 data only).
3. NR = Not Reported.
4. DeMotte, Elkhart, Fort Wayne, Highland, Hobart, South Bend, Speedway and Winchester reported using federal tax credits for their 2012 tax-supported debt. These credits typically are used to reduce debt payments. The debt obligations reported here do not reflect these credits.
